safety of Jersey City, after a preliminary examination of the wreckage and questioning the officers of the company and the survivors, directed Police Capt. Nugent to arrest John Andress, superintendent of the plant, on a charge of homicide.

Mr. Hague said that Andreas adnitted to him that the explosion was caused by some one a carelessness.

In the northern end of the plant, close to the Morris Canal, were three frame buildings in which a hazardous division of the work was carried These were the shed in which the firecracker composition-a par-Selicate and powerful explosive-was dried on paper trays, and two weighing sheds in which the cettion was weighed and assorted before being sent to the factories

ON THE ALLIES' LEFT FAIL TO BREAK LINE

Armies of Von Buelow, Von Kluck and Von Boehm Have Been Combined in Final Effort to Head Off the Flanking Movement.

750,000 ON THE LEFT WING FACE EQUAL GERMAN FORCE

ROME, Oct. 3 (Central News).-- A despatch from Petrograd received here to-day says the Germans are evacuating Huselan territory and that regiments of German troops have been drawned in the Rieman River. According to the despatch the Germane also lost siege artillery.

It was reported that Kaiser Wilhelm escaped with great

PARIS, Oct. 3 [United Press].—The official review of the battle of the Alsne confirms the report that the Germans failed in their attack last night when they tried to break through the French left in the vicinity of Roye and between there and Lassigny.

It states that the Germans were heavily reinforced but that they have been unable to penetrate the French lin and that they have again been repulsed with loss.

The official communique also declares that an attem on the part of the army of the Crown Prince to slip throu the Prench fines in the vicinity of the forest of Grurie fa The French attacked and drove the enemy back at this point.

Generally speaking the situation in the centre is described as unchanged while constant progress is being made by the French in the Woevre district. [It is reported that the ailtes now have at least 750,000 men in armies on their left wing. (The line from the Aisne to the Belgian border is about seventy-five miles. To defend positions and to take such offer steps as von Kluck has attempted requires at least 10,000 men per mile. On this estimate there are 750,000 in the German ranks on the right. Thus the German force is equal to the 750,000 men on the ailles' left, and it may be even greater.

It is reported that the armies of Von Boehm, Von Kluck and Von Buelow have all been partly amalgamated and that they are now holding a series of lines facing north and south from near Ribecourt to Mons, in Belgium, and turning out toward Doual and Bapaume.

The line of the Alsne, formerly held by Von Buelow, to reported occupied by his troops which were withdrawn from Alsace-Lorraine and the German Rhine fortresses.

It is the presence of so many veterans on the German right that is responsible for the long continued fighting. They are making a supreme effort to break the French line and divide the ailled armies so that the armies operating with Arras and Amiens as bases can be isolated and destroyed.

This operation will prove unsuccessful, in the op of the military experts, who declare that the ferocity of the attacks yesterday and last night indicate that the high tide of German offense has been reached.

Because of the false hopes held out that the present battle. If it resulted in defeat to the Germans might end the war, attention was being called to the fact by the military experts in the Paris newspapers to-day that this battle cannot be actually decisive.

If the Germans lose they will retire slowly and in good order to their next line of defense, which is known to be just inside of the Southern Belgian frontier.

In the contingency that the allies should have to ground, they have a secondary defense line so
